MARY MURDOCH MAIR McMILLAN

Mary Murdoch was born November 23, 1819, at Gaswater, Ayrshire, Scotland. She was the daughter of James and Mary Murray Murdoch. Her father died when he was overcome by damp gas while trying to rescue a fellow worker from a well. This made it necessary for Mary to seek employment as soon as she was old enough. She worked mostly at farm homes, where she learned to milk cows, make butter and cheese, also to tend the cows, and at harvest time worked in the field, as all the grain was bound by hand.
